

A Message to an Expectant Mother, from Her Baby soon to Be Born

There are some things I have been wanting to whisper to you Mummy.

I am placing my beginnings in your hands.

And I do this knowing who you are and all the best that is in you.

I know the contents of your heart for I have grown beneath it.

Even now I am sensitive to your thoughts and feelings.

I am counting the days as eagerly as you when I'll see your face and you'll see mine.

When that time comes our journey as one becomes the journey of two.

I ask you to be my first and most important guide for your lessons are the ones my spirit will always remember.

I will learn gentleness from your tender touch.

I will learn joyfulness when my smile makes you laugh.

I will learn peacefulness as you cradle me in your arms.

I will learn mercy when you sooth my cry.

I will learn caring whilst snuggled at your breast.

I will learn patience as you allow me to develop in my own time.

I will learn love from your lifelong commitment to me.

And in return, I will keep your sense of wonder alive.

And I will inspire in you the unconditional love that rests in a mother's heart.

Authors: Lisa McKimm and Tiffany Hester

Visit www.parentingworx.co.nz